IMPROVING OUR "IMAGE"

ONE of the most encouraging developments since the Soviet Union started the "cold war" following V-J Day in 1945 is the unmistakable tendency on the part of our most gifted writers, educators, and statesmen to speak out against the policy of appeasement we have followed for the last nineteen years.

It may be this change had to come slowly in order to impress former enemies, as well as allies, that we are strong enough, rich enough and good enough to treat all men fairly and without selfish motives.

At times this has seemed to be impossible because of centuries of serfdom, ignorance and back-breaking toil by millions who covet our material advantages. We have been entirely too slow in informing them just why this nation is so richly blessed — that it is because our forbears had faith that "man does not live by bread alone" and that faith in God was so deeply engraved on their hearts and minds that they adopted a constitution based on the Golden Rule, the foundation of freedom and the private enterprise economic system which has given us the highest standard of living in the world.

It is a hopeful "sign of the times" for a man of the stature of Dr. Milton Eisenhower, President of John Hopkins University of Baltimore and brother of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower, to appear on the "Meet the Press" program on television and answer questions of personal, family, national and world importance with such candor as he did last Sunday.

He mined no words in expressing his opinion that some American voters were misled in 1960 by politicians who downgraded our way of life to the extent the world considered this nation a second rate power.

And less than six months afterwards, he said, Defense Secretary McNamara calmly announced we had "caught up" with the Soviet Union, that the "missile gap" had been closed.

A "warning" not to abandon our way of life was issued by another great educator in this week's issue of U.S. News and World Report. He is Professor G. Warren Nutter, head of the economics department of the University of Virginia.

In an interview he said in answer to the question as to whether Russia will ever be able to draw abreast of the United States: "They can easily draw abreast of us, or pass us, in certain areas, in the military area, winter Olympics, steel production, other things, but I can't imagine their drawing abreast of us over all — their duplicating what we have — UNLESS OUR SYSTEM BECOMES MORE LIKE THEIRS, OR THEIRS LIKE OURS."

Russians are great people. There isn't any question about that. So are Germans, Englishmen, Irish, French, Italians, and others. But why imitate systems which have proven so unworthy and ineffective? Why not advocate and promote our own free enterprise system and Christian faith which have been so satisfactory through the years and brought happiness and prosperity to so many people in America.

-Farm Facts-

CORN NOTES. Within the next few weeks Kentucky farmers will plant almost one and a quarter million acres of corn. This is five times the acreage of 1953 and more than twice the combined acreage of all other crops, other than hay and pasture, but still only a third of the acreage cultivated a generation ago. Corn is important both because of its cash value (between 75 and 100 million dollars annually) and its effect upon the land. Where cultivated on hill land it can be conducive to severe erosion and land deterioration, on level land it can be grown annually with ever increasing yields and improved fertility when proper fertilization methods are used.

Changes in corn growing practices during recent years have increased average state yields from less than 30 bushels in the 1930's to over 60 bushels in 1963. The first notable change was the adoption, about 20 years ago, of hybrid corn. This year practically all of the state's acreage will be planted to hybrids and many farmers will use the more expensive and sophisticated single cross hybrid seed. It is outstanding for uniformity and quality; uses plant food and moisture efficiently, and makes high yields.

Along with hybrid corn came new fertilizing practices and thicker planting. A few years ago only enough fertilizer was used under corn to stimulate its early growth. Now, fertilizing practices is a science that requires good judgment and plenty of money. Judgment is required to determine the kind and amount of plant food needed, the most economical formulas to use and the best methods of application.

The use of high producing hybrids and modern fertilizing practice brought on the need for thicker planting and new ways to control weeds. Fifteen to twenty thousand plants per acre is the recommended rate (it used to be 6 to 8 thousand), and weeds are now controlled with pre-emergence sprays at the time of planting. The combination of these practices has eliminated the need for cultivating the crop and this year thousands of Kentucky producers will not go into their corn fields from the time of planting until the day it is harvested, except to gather some "roasting ears" and evaluate their efforts.

All of these new practices are costly and require a good bank account or a good credit rating at the bank. They have added to the per-acre cost of producing corn but have lowered the per bushel cost. It is one of those predicaments where the farmer can hardly afford the added costs of modern farming but he certainly can't compete without using them.

"When Buying Seed, Read the Label." What does it mean? It probably your first question when buying seed for your lawn or garden this spring. But be sure to read the label as well as the price tag.

Usually, the only way to tell the difference between high and low priced seed mixtures is to check the label. Such factors as kind and variety, purity and germination rate are often more important than price—and the label must give information about these. Comparing information given on the labels of seeds priced at different levels will be well worth your time, according to the Marketing Service.

Truthful labeling is required under seed laws administered by each of the 50 states, as well as under the Federal Seed Act, which applies to seed shipped across state lines. This law, passed 25 years ago, is administered by USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service and enforced with cooperation from state seed agencies.

Suppose you're buying seed for a new lawn. Here some of the information you'll find on the label. The percentage of each kind of seed present—this tells you the exact components of the seed mixture you buy.

The germination rate, which indicates how much of the seed will come up when planted. A germination rate of 85 percent, for instance, means about 85 of every 100 pure seeds planted will grow if given the right care and growing conditions. The date the seed was tested for germination, since seed naturally loses its vitality as it becomes older. The date tested must be no more than six months before it was shipped across a state line.

State laws also prevent the sale of seed with an old test date—most allow nine months.

The percentage of seeds and other materials that indicate purity. The percentage of pure seed must be shown, as well as percentages of other "crop" seed, weed seeds, etc. Each state also has a list of "noxious" weeds—seeds that state considers undesirable. The labeling of seeds shipped into the state must show whether seeds of these weeds are present, and the number cannot exceed the permissible limits set by the state.

Kentucky is the Pilot State in Rural Fire Defense. It is one of five states included in a pilot program for fire defense training in rural areas.

Funds have been allotted forestry agencies in five states—Kentucky, Colorado, Oregon, Florida and Missouri—to begin training volunteer fire suppression forces for more than 500 million acres of range, agriculture, brush and forest lands now lacking protection.

One aim of the program is to strengthen fire protection in rural areas as a civil defense measure.

Tournament Site Up To Key Men

By ROBERT WESTON

United Press International
LOUISVILLE — The Delegates Assembly of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association has left the future site of the State High School Basketball Tournament up to the association's Board of Control at its meeting here today.

It is understood that the board is in favor of having the tournament permanently in Louisville. The assembly Thursday killed a proposal by two eastern Kentucky high school principals to alternate the tournament between Louisville and Lexington. The tournament already has been set at Louisville next year and in Lexington in 1966. Thereafter, the site has not been determined.

In other action Thursday, the assembly adopted a change in the rules which would make a student ineligible for participation in any sport when he attains his 16th

Baseball Expects Very Good Season Says Ford Frick

By FORD FRICK

Commissioner of Baseball
Written for UPI

NEW YORK (UPI) — This is the time of year when those of us in baseball are asked our opinions about the forthcoming season. In my case, the question usually is "What kind of year do you think baseball will have?"

It is my sincere feeling that baseball is not only looking ahead to a most successful season, but is moving into one of its most important eras. It is not only the 1964 picture that is bright, but also the years ahead.

It is a combination of things that causes this feeling. For one thing we know that interest in the game itself is running higher. This is true on the professional level, but it is also true on the college and high school fields and the sandlots, which are the true focal points of our game.

The promise that is held by the next few years is increased by the fact that more boys and young men now are playing baseball than ever before in our nation's history. It is inevitable that from this youth participation will come more players, and more fans.

Another factor is the moving of major league clubs into new homes.

Take Thursday, for example. The 6' 4" outfielder had three hits, including a home run, to lead Cincinnati to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox in Jacksonville, Fla.

Skinner is battling for the left field job, the position he held during his better days before the Pirates traded him to the Reds last season for Jerry Lynch.

Needs a Comeback

Should Skinner regain his 1962 form (.320, 20 home runs and 75 RBIs) his worries, as well as Cincinnati's, would be eased quite a bit.

Chuck Hinton of the Washington Senators also had a big afternoon offensively Thursday. He had four straight singles as the Washington Senators defeated the New York Yankees, 7-3.

The Senators had 13 hits off three Yankee pitchers with Ed Brinkman picking up three of them. Bill Stafford started and took the loss for New York.

Houston's Rusty Staub pinch-hit a bases-loaded double in the fifth inning that helped the Colts defeat St. Louis, 7-1. Five Houston pitchers held the Cardinals to three singles. Charlie Lea and Dick Green came through with key singles and the Kansas City A's scored two runs in the eighth inning to defeat the Detroit Tigers, 6-4.

The Baltimore Orioles defeated the Milwaukee Braves, 5-2, for their sixth straight win against National League opposition. A three-run homer by Brooks Robinson off Warren Spain proved to be the difference.

Pascual Looks Good

Camillo Pascual prepped for his opening day assignment by pitching five strong innings as the Minnesota Twins beat the New York Mets, 4-1. Pascual, who will pitch the opener against Cleveland next Tuesday, allowed just three singles.

The San Francisco Giants scored six runs in the fifth inning and went on to defeat the Los Angeles Angels, 7-1, at Modesto, Calif. The Giants pitched out 26 hits off Pete Mahon, Jerry Walker and Don McMahon. Jim May may have homered for San Francisco when Al Lapiow and Leon Wagner, who had home runs for the Indians.

Jack Kalsworth and Gen Hobbie combined for an eight-inning while leading the Chicago Cubs to a 9-4 victory over Boston in Albuquerque, N.M. Ellsworth went seven innings and was relieved by Hobbie, who finished. Billy Williams had two home runs for the Cubs.

The Los Angeles Angels defeated their Hawaii farm club of the Pacific Coast League, 7-1 at Indio, Calif.

Skinner Had Worries In '63, But Looked Better Thursday With 3 Hits To Win Game 5-2

By SANDY PADWE

United Press International

When a baseball player reaches 33 it's time to worry, especially if you stumbled through a whole season the way Bob Skinner did in 1963.

Skinner split his time between Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, batting only .269 with three home runs and just 25 RBIs. That didn't exactly make it easy for him to enjoy the winter months back home in San Diego, but he's eased his worries somewhat this spring.

Take Thursday, for example. The 6' 4" outfielder had three hits, including a home run, to lead Cincinnati to a 5-2 victory over the Chicago White Sox in Jacksonville, Fla.

Languages Necessary To Music Makers

By JIM EVANS
United Press International
NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — The men who work on Music Row here are finding foreign languages more and more necessary.

French and German are becoming almost standard tools of the trade as the Nashville sound continues to attract listeners from around the world.

As lands such as France, Germany and of course England discover the "sound" their artists converge on Music Row to add it to their own tunes.

The row on 16th avenue, south is populated by most of music city's sound and recording studios, and plans are even bigger for the future.

The future, of course, depends on the continued popularity of the Nashville sound, but those associated with the industry see little, if any, let up.

Obet Atkins, guitar country king, said he didn't expect the current craze for Beatle-music to make much of a dent in the local product.

"I expect Nashville to grow," Atkins said. "We had a great year last year, and if I stay lucky, Victor will have a great year this year."

"Victor" apparently is looking forward to quite a number of "great years."

Ground adjacent to the current studio site is being cleared, and Atkins said construction will start soon on a giant addition.

A faction here is currently working to have the city change the name of the street to a more romantic "Music City Boulevard," and from all indications they will be successful.

Soundtracks: The gate totaled $30,000 at a recent show in Tokyo, Japan. Hank Snow filled 6,000 seats on the first leg of a Japanese tour.

"The great interest shown in Japan for my songs," Snow said, "was truly unbelievable."

A couple of late products include new releases by Charley Rich and Justin Tubo on the Groove label.

Justin, Ernest's son, recorded two of his own compositions.

Species Of Man Far Older Than Others Found

WASHINGTON (AP) — A British scientist today reported discovery of a species of man 1,250,000 years older than the most ancient previously known human being.

The scientist, Dr. Louis S. B. Leakey, said the newly discovered species may represent the most significant turning point in the history of man's evolution from his ape-like forebears to homo sapiens, the single surviving species which includes all human beings living today.

Leakey and two other anthropologists have named the hitherto unsuspected species homo habilis. The name means "having ability" — the ability to use tools and to stand and walk upright, perhaps to speak.

Leakey and his wife Mary habilis individuals in Olduvai Gorge, Tanganyika, in East Africa, where they have been digging into man's dim past for decades.

One of the individuals was an 11-year-old child. Another was an elderly woman. A third was a girl, 20 to 21 years old, whom the Leakeys nicknamed "Cinderella."

The discovery and identification of homo habilis means that current textbooks on the history of man "have got to be completely rewritten," Leakey told reporters at a news conference sponsored by the National Geographic Society, which supported their work.

Homo habilis, a pithy by modern standards, took up residence in the Olduvai Gorge about 1,250,000 years ago. He stuck around for more than a million years. Others of his species apparently fanned out from Africa to what is now Europe. He stood 3 1/2 to 4 1/2 feet tall. His skull was small. But judging by its shape, Leakey said, he was "just like you or me." His hands and feet were similar in form and function to modern man's.

A DAILY INCIDENT!

Hardly a day passes without the newspapers reporting an automobile accident. Lives are lost and bodies maimed due to careless driving on our streets and highways.

Another daily incident which the newspapers often do not report, and to which others are indifferent, is the ruining of lives and character in the wretched, uneducated, and poverty-ridden parts of the great cities in our land. There are those who despair of ever getting out of their situation and so despondency sets in and a lack of desire to strive for worthy goals enters the spirit.

A loving God would have us aware of these whose lives, self-respect and character could be saved — if we were interested enough.

God often impresses the needs of His children upon those who attend His church. It is His will that we should show forth the love of God for mankind by helping all who are suffering. Attend the church of your choice this Sunday.

The Church is God's appointed agency in this world for spreading the knowledge of His love for man and of His demand for man to respond to that love by loving his neighbor. Without this grounding in the love of God, no government or society or way of life will long persevere and the freedoms which we hold so dear will inevitably perish. Therefore, even from a selfish point of view, one should support the Church for the sake of the welfare of himself and his family. Beyond that, however, every person should uphold and participate in the Church because it tells the truth about man's life, death and destiny; the truth which alone will set him free to live as a child of God.

Mrs. Loman Bailey Hostess For New Concord Club Meet

Mrs. Loman Bailey opened her home for the meeting of the New Concord Homemakers Club held on Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock with the president, Mrs. Charlie Stubblefield, presiding.

The devotion from the 23rd Psalm was given by Miss Erin Montgomery. Mrs. T. R. Edwards read the minutes and called the roll with the members answering with the name of their favorite bird.

Mrs. Larry O'ard gave the landscape notes. She said the dogwood tree is native to all sections of the state and generally in full bloom. She further said that one must keep adding mulch as the dogwood thrives on it.

The main lesson on "Foundation Planting" was presented by Mrs. Loman Bailey and Mrs. Pete Hughes who used pictures to illustrate good landscaping homes. They said landscaping creates a good atmosphere, adds beauty to property, and establishes prestige in a community.

The leaders said your front door is a focal point and should be visible at all times. Evergreens and flowering shrubs should be well balanced to dispense your round beauty. There are two plants, crepe myrtle and ginkgo biloba, that will give your home grounds an almost tropical splendor from mid June to October. Such added beauty not only increases your own dignity and happiness but it also pleases your neighbors.

Refreshments were served by the hostess to the students members and three visitors, Mrs. Lucie Spaulding, Mrs. G. C. Segmond, and Mrs. Carl Vick, with the latter two becoming new members.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Miss Beatrice Locke on Wednesday, May 13, at 1 p.m.

DOLLAR HUNGRY—This is part of the long, long lineup at the U. S. Treasury in Washington, people after silver dollars. It all started when a newly-opened vault was found to contain the relatively scarce "Morgan" type, named after its designer and minted between 1878 and 1904. Hundreds of people carted away thousands of the cartwheel coins, sorted through them for numismatic value, then brought them back for paper.

700 Foot Block Of Granite To Be A Feature Attraction

By CHARLES S. TAYLOR JR.
United Press International
ATLANTA (AP) — Stone Mountain, a 700-foot block of granite that was once lighted by the torches of the Ku Klux Klan, is being polished to a bright shine, as a Confederate memorial and a lure for Yankee tourists.

It is already quite a sight and it is bound to be quite a memorial. Stone Mountain generally is recognized as the largest granite monolith in the world. Technically, it is not a mountain but a stone.

Its girth at the base is five miles. It weighs half a billion tons — or one trillion pounds. Though it reaches about 700 feet above the ground, the surrounding plains are relatively flat.

The mountain rises suddenly from this plain and the person seeing it for the first time is not likely to forget its huge, towering form, standing like a sentry, 16 miles east of Atlanta.

Builders are now busy gouging out a four-lane express way leading to the mountain. Contractors are putting the finishing touches on a 50-room hotel.

Steps snake down to the unfinished outlines of Confederate General Robert E. Lee on the sheer side of the mountain. The ring of the sculptor's chapel stood here in 1928. It is scheduled to start up again this summer.

As it is symbolizing the emergence of Stone Mountain from a past beleaguered by controversy over what to do with this half-billion ton rock, a formal dance will be held atop the mountain this month.

Guests will arrive by a brand-new Swiss-built cable car. They will dance in a magnificent observation building.

If all goes well, Stone Mountain Memorial Park will hold its formal opening early this summer. Gates on either side of the mountain will close and an admission will be charged.

Guests will be mothers or daughters of the members. Mrs. J. M. Converse's group is in charge.

The Ruth Class of the First Baptist Church will have a potluck supper at the church at 6:15 p.m. Guests will be daughters of the members. Group IV, Mrs. Howell Thurman, captain, will be in charge.

Murray Star Chapter No. 433 Order of the Eastern Star will meet at the Masonic Hall at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Albert Crider Leader For Elm Grove WMS Program

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Elm Grove Baptist Church met Wednesday evening at the church for the regular program meeting with Mrs. Albert Crider in charge.

"Our Jewish Neighbors" was the theme of the program presented by Mrs. Crider, Mrs. Gary Wickler, Mrs. Glen Hale, and Mrs. Walton Fulkerson.

The group sang "We've A Story To Tell" followed by the call to prayer from Luke 9:2 by Mrs. Brigham Futrell. Mrs. Pearl Moore led the closing prayer. Mrs. Fulkerson, president.

Others present were Mesdames Thelma Parker, Alfred Keel, Harry Shetler, Earl Lee, Charles Burken, Maude Hale, Keys Keel, George Cossey, Mae Williams, Mason Thomas, Melvin Barnes, and Joe McKusick.

Fashionettes

Fringe benefits are scheduled for fall fashions. Watch for lamp shades beaded fringe on hems of embroidered dresses, silk fringe on scarves, dress belts, belts. Harper's Bazaar reports there'll even be fringed sweaters and fringed jeweled cuff links!

There's no halting the halter. It will be back next winter in short dinner suits, long hostess pajamas, ballroom gowns.

Dear Abby . . .

Be A Sport, Lady!

Abigail Van Buren

DEAR ABBY: In our community there is a couple whom my husband and I have known for over half a century. He and my husband have been fast friends since their boyhood. The man had a heart attack and when he came home from the hospital we called on him. He was as gray as a ghost, and I honestly didn't think he was going to make it so I called him by his first name. That is all. Well, he is recovering now and has started calling me by MY first name, and I don't like it. I prize his wife's friendship highly, but don't appreciate her husband's undue familiarity. What do you suggest?

DEAR NEARING: I don't know what you consider "undue familiarity" but it would appear that you are unduly aloof. And don't forget, you initiated the familiarity!

DEAR ABBY: What is a girl supposed to think when a boy falls asleep on a date? Could it be that I bore him? He is wide awake when we start out, but no matter where we are, if there's a chance for him to close his eyes, he falls asleep. I have told him to stay home if he likes to sleep that much, but he says he would rather be with me. Should I break up with him?

DEAR WIDE: Don't assume that you are a bore, or that the boy just "likes to sleep." It is entirely possible that the young man needs to see a doctor. Suggest it.

DEAR ABBY: Now that spring is here, the old problem we had last summer comes to mind. On our street the houses are rather close together. The man next door is a sun worshiper, so at the first hint of warm weather he puts on his swim trunks and stands around in his front yard sunbathing, wedding and showing off in general. His trunks are elastic, flesh-colored, and about as abbreviated as they can be without landing him in jail. He is being skinny, bald-headed and a grandfather many times. I am ashamed to let my children play outside when he is out there. We don't want to call the police, but the whole neighborhood thinks he is a disgrace. What should we do?

SUN WORSHIPERS
NEIGHBORS
DEAR NEIGHBORS: Ask the chief of detectives or vice squad in your local police department to observe the sun worshiper and decide whether he is actually violating any ordinances about exposure or decency. If he is, the police will act.

CONFIDENTIAL TO SID: Anybody can write a love letter, but it takes a very clever person to get it back.

UNDERCOVER CAT

The FBI's Most Surprising Agent By THE GORDONS

CHAPTER 26

THE CUCKOO was preparing to strike six when Patti Randall went to the bedroom for a change of clothes. She guessed she should have called or knocked. She was always surprising Zeke Kelo.

This time he had his shoes off, and began scrounging around for them. "They're here somewhere," he said, casting a suspicious glance toward D.C. "Are you a kicker off, too?" she asked. It was surprising how much they had in common. D.C. sat on the chest top and displayed unusual interest in what was transpiring. He had his moods. He might be bored and blasé one day, and the next, the scholar who was eager to learn all he could about his fellow man. Now his bright, full eyes followed first the one, then the other.

As she went to the clothes closet, Patti said, "I'm sorry I blew up."

"Don't blame you," he was still searching for his shoes. "I wouldn't, too." He looked up from the floor, sending her a smile that warmed her all over. "I should've kept it from happening but I haven't had much practice hiding in girls' bedrooms. They don't teach practical things like that in the Bureau. Oh, they do. They do. He was as elated as if he had trapped a bear. He found them where he had placed them, on an end table.

"Ingrid talked with Mr. Balter. He promised her he'd keep quiet."

"How'd she manage that?" Patti left the closet with a red Italian knit. "She wouldn't tell me but I can guess. She probably turned on the tears. If this gets out, she says, it will hurt her so for everyone to know her sister is a tramp, and it doesn't happen very often, and there's hope for her if she marries the right man. I can just hear her telling him what a sweet, dear person he is, and I can see him puffing up like a toad and—damn, where're those earrings?"

Her fingers rummaged through a little green jewelry case on top of the chest alongside D.C. who dug in a paw to help. "No thanks," she said, removing the paw. "I remember putting them right here yesterday. They're always running off and hiding."

Zeke put on his coat. "I've got a pair of cuff links I'm going to get out a wanted bulletin on it they don't show up soon." He turned toward D.C. and sneezed. "What about him? Is he going out tonight?"

Patti rubbed his ears, and he purred and stretched. "How about it, D.C.?"

He meowed softly, and Patti translated. "He says sure, why not? Except he's stricken Greg's place from his route after what happened last night. The radio came alive, and Zeke stepped into the closet and began talking. She watched him covertly. Such a long, tall man with the grace of a cat in his walk and movements. He would be nice to have around, she thought, easygoing when a man should be, and firm when the occasion called for it. He would be gentle and thoughtful with the woman who was his wife, even if she might never know him too well.

He would always conceal his thoughts behind those soft, blue eyes, a loner of the desert country. Not that he would ever have reason to hide anything, but only because he had lived like that from childhood, a way-spurring his Mustang into the canyons or up on some mesa, and lying under a greasewood bush and talking to himself and dreaming his dreams.

Now Greg, he would want to share his life with his family. He would talk out his thoughts and expect others to do the same. He possessed such a terrific zest for living. He hungered for excitement and fed on it, whether behind a 250-horsepower motor, or with a beautiful, unbroken woman, or fighting a court case, or storming across the street with a bedraggled begonia.

And that temper. A woman could help so much, a wife who understood and was patient who could reason with him, whose love would be such that he would do anything for her. He had lived too long alone, and indulged too often his feelings and whims.

PATTI smiled inwardly. Ever since she first became interested in boys, she had projected herself into the future with this one and that one, imagining what it would be like to be his wife. And here she was doing it again, and at her age.

As Zeke put down the microphone, she asked, "Can I get you coffee, anything?"

She discovered she was standing close to him, so close he could have taken her into his arms, and suddenly she wanted that. She could see the same way reflected in his eyes, as no doubt he could in hers.

Then the reflection clouded as a thought stole in, reminding her of a reason why he should not. He turned away with seeming effort, and a chill brushed the warmth from her.

Now if he had been Greg, and seen the want in her eyes, he

"In the meantime," said the fashioneer, "most of them will look as though they came out of the woodwork or wallpaper. What's maddening about it is that most of them feel safest playing it just that colorless."
